

National Severe Weather Warning Service

Chief Forecasters Assessment

Clear skies across central and southern parts of England and Wales will allow some fog patches to form fairly readily this evening, although these will tend to lift into low cloud across southern England overnight. However, fog is likely to become widespread and dense across more southeastern parts of Wales, the Midlands and possibly East Anglia with visibility falling to 50 metres in places. The fog will thin only slowly during Thursday morning.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Fog

Valid from 21:00 on Wed, 14th Nov 2012 until 11:00 on Thu, 15th Nov 2012

Fog is expected to become widespread and dense later on Wednesday evening and overnight into Thursday across southeastern parts of Wales, the Midlands and possibly East Anglia.

The public should be aware of the risk of poor driving conditions due to significantly reduced visibility.
